

Dan Taylor

Graphs & Scores

16/10/2015

Private & Confidential

Norms: United Kingdom 2010

This report provides you with information and guidance which can help you become more aware of your emotional intelligence. It provides a basis for development and training activities.

Before going any further please read this introduction. It provides the background you need to understand your report and to act on it.

What is emotional intelligence and why is it important?

How well do we understand ourselves and other people? How do we approach crucial relationships? These are issues in every aspect of our home, social and work life.

Much of our work success is based on our skills, knowledge and experience; but another part depends on how we get on with colleagues, managers, staff who report to us, suppliers and customers. We need to understand ourselves and how we appear to other people, as well as understand what makes other people tick. We can then use this knowledge to achieve our goals. Emotional intelligence is not about being nice or soft. It involves interacting effectively with other people to get a job done or to achieve the kind of life we want.

Emotional intelligence is important in work areas as varied as leadership and management, team and project work and all types of customer relationship. It affects our family and social life.

The Trait Emotional Intelligence Questionnaire measures our understanding of ourselves and of other people, and our ability to use this knowledge to achieve our goals.

How to think about your report

Put the scores and these comments in the context of your life and work when you're thinking about them. Ask questions like: what am I trying to achieve?; where do I have problems in relationships with other people?; what aspects of my emotional intelligence are particularly important in my work or personal life?

Scores on the Trait Emotional Intelligence Questionnaire tend to be very stable over time; as stable as your basic personality. But like your basic personality, work or life events may cause certain aspects of your emotional intelligence to fluctuate. The scores in this report are therefore not carved in stone. They will assist in your own assessment of how effectively you interact with others. This report should be seen as the beginning of an investigation which can result in an improved understanding of how to interact with other people. This will have benefits in both your work performance and social life.

Scores

Your scores are reported in three different banding categories:

The use of the word 'average' does not imply that you can achieve good or bad scores on this questionnaire. The percentages indicate how you responded as compared with the other people who filled in the Questionnaire during its development.

There is no right or wrong way of using emotional intelligence. There are positive and negative implications for all the different scores on this questionnaire. These are explained in the report.

Uses

The Trait Emotional Intelligence Questionnaire is used for a number of purposes. Examples of these are:

It is important that you understand why you have been asked to fill in the Trait Emotional Intelligence Questionnaire and how the scores will be used to benefit you.

This report has been produced by Thomas International website. Further information can be obtained <http://www.thomasinternational.net>

The Trait Emotional Intelligence Questionnaire was developed by K.V. Petrides, PhD at the London Psychometric Laboratory in University College London (UCL).

Factor and Facet scores

Below are your scores on the four Factors of the Trait Emotional Intelligence Questionnaire. Trait emotional intelligence comprises four broad categories called 'Factors' ('well-being', 'self-control', 'emotionality', and 'sociability') that help summarise people's scores on the 15 different Facets. Factors represent a level of measurement that is broader than that of the Facets, but more detailed than that of global Trait Emotional Intelligence. The trade-off between the various levels of measurement (Facet – Factor – Global) concerns breadth versus depth. At the Facet level, descriptions are detailed and focused, whereas at the global level, descriptions give a broad overview. The Factor level provides a useful level of intermediate measurement and description.

Global score

The Global score gives you a snapshot of your general emotional functioning.

This means your own perceived capacity to understand, process and use information about your and other peoples' emotions in your everyday life. It is important to note that the Global score is very broad. It is made up of more focused Factor scores and much more detailed Facet scores. These are included later in this report with commentaries highlighting strengths and areas of development as well as strategies you can adopt. Please refer to the Factor and Facet scales for more detail about certain aspects of your general emotional functioning.

Background

This report is based on your responses to the questionnaire. It therefore reflects what you think of yourself. Your scores have been compared to the responses of a representative UK working population sample then reported under the headings of four main, broad Factors. These are made up of fifteen more focused Facets.

There are also two independent Facets that do not contribute to a Factor:

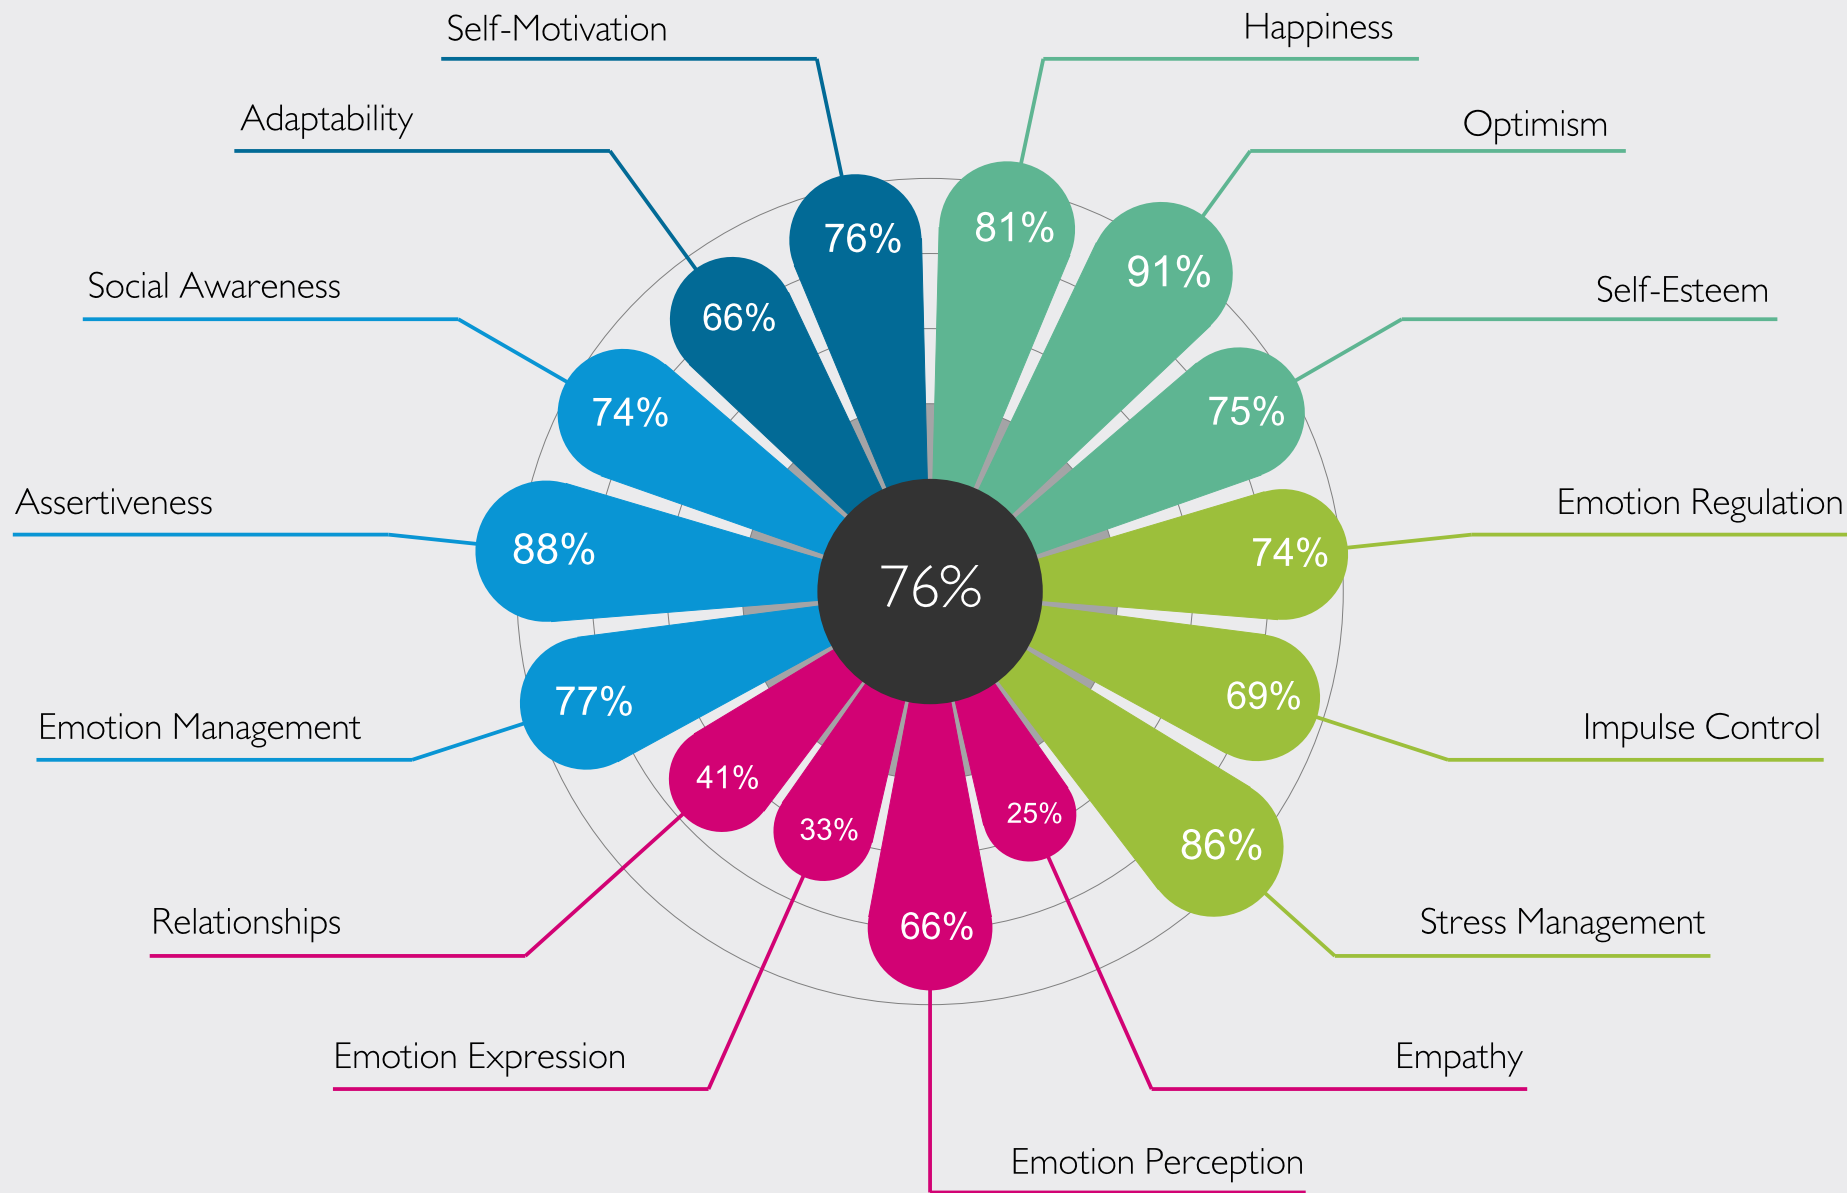

Adaptability and Self Motivation

View the full interactive TEIQue Guide online at www.thomasinternational.net

"How much of an impact does emotional intelligence have on your professional success? The short answer is: a lot! It's a powerful way to focus your energy in one direction with a tremendous result"

Travis Bradberry - for Forbes.com

Global Score

Well-Being Factor

Self-Control Factor

Emotionality Factor

Sociability Factor

Independent Facets

Share with a colleague for a free PPA trial.

Need support in measuring and improving workplace engagement?

360

Develop self-awareness and identify performance gaps
through 360 degree feedback

GI

Measuring ability and aptitude

PP

Gain an accurate insight into how your people behave at work in just 8 minutes

For more information about how we can help you develop your people, call us on 01628 475 366 or email info@thomas.co.uk